STUDENTS ARE BECOMING CONSUMERS OF AI ANSWERS INSTEAD OF CREATORS OF KNOWLEDGE

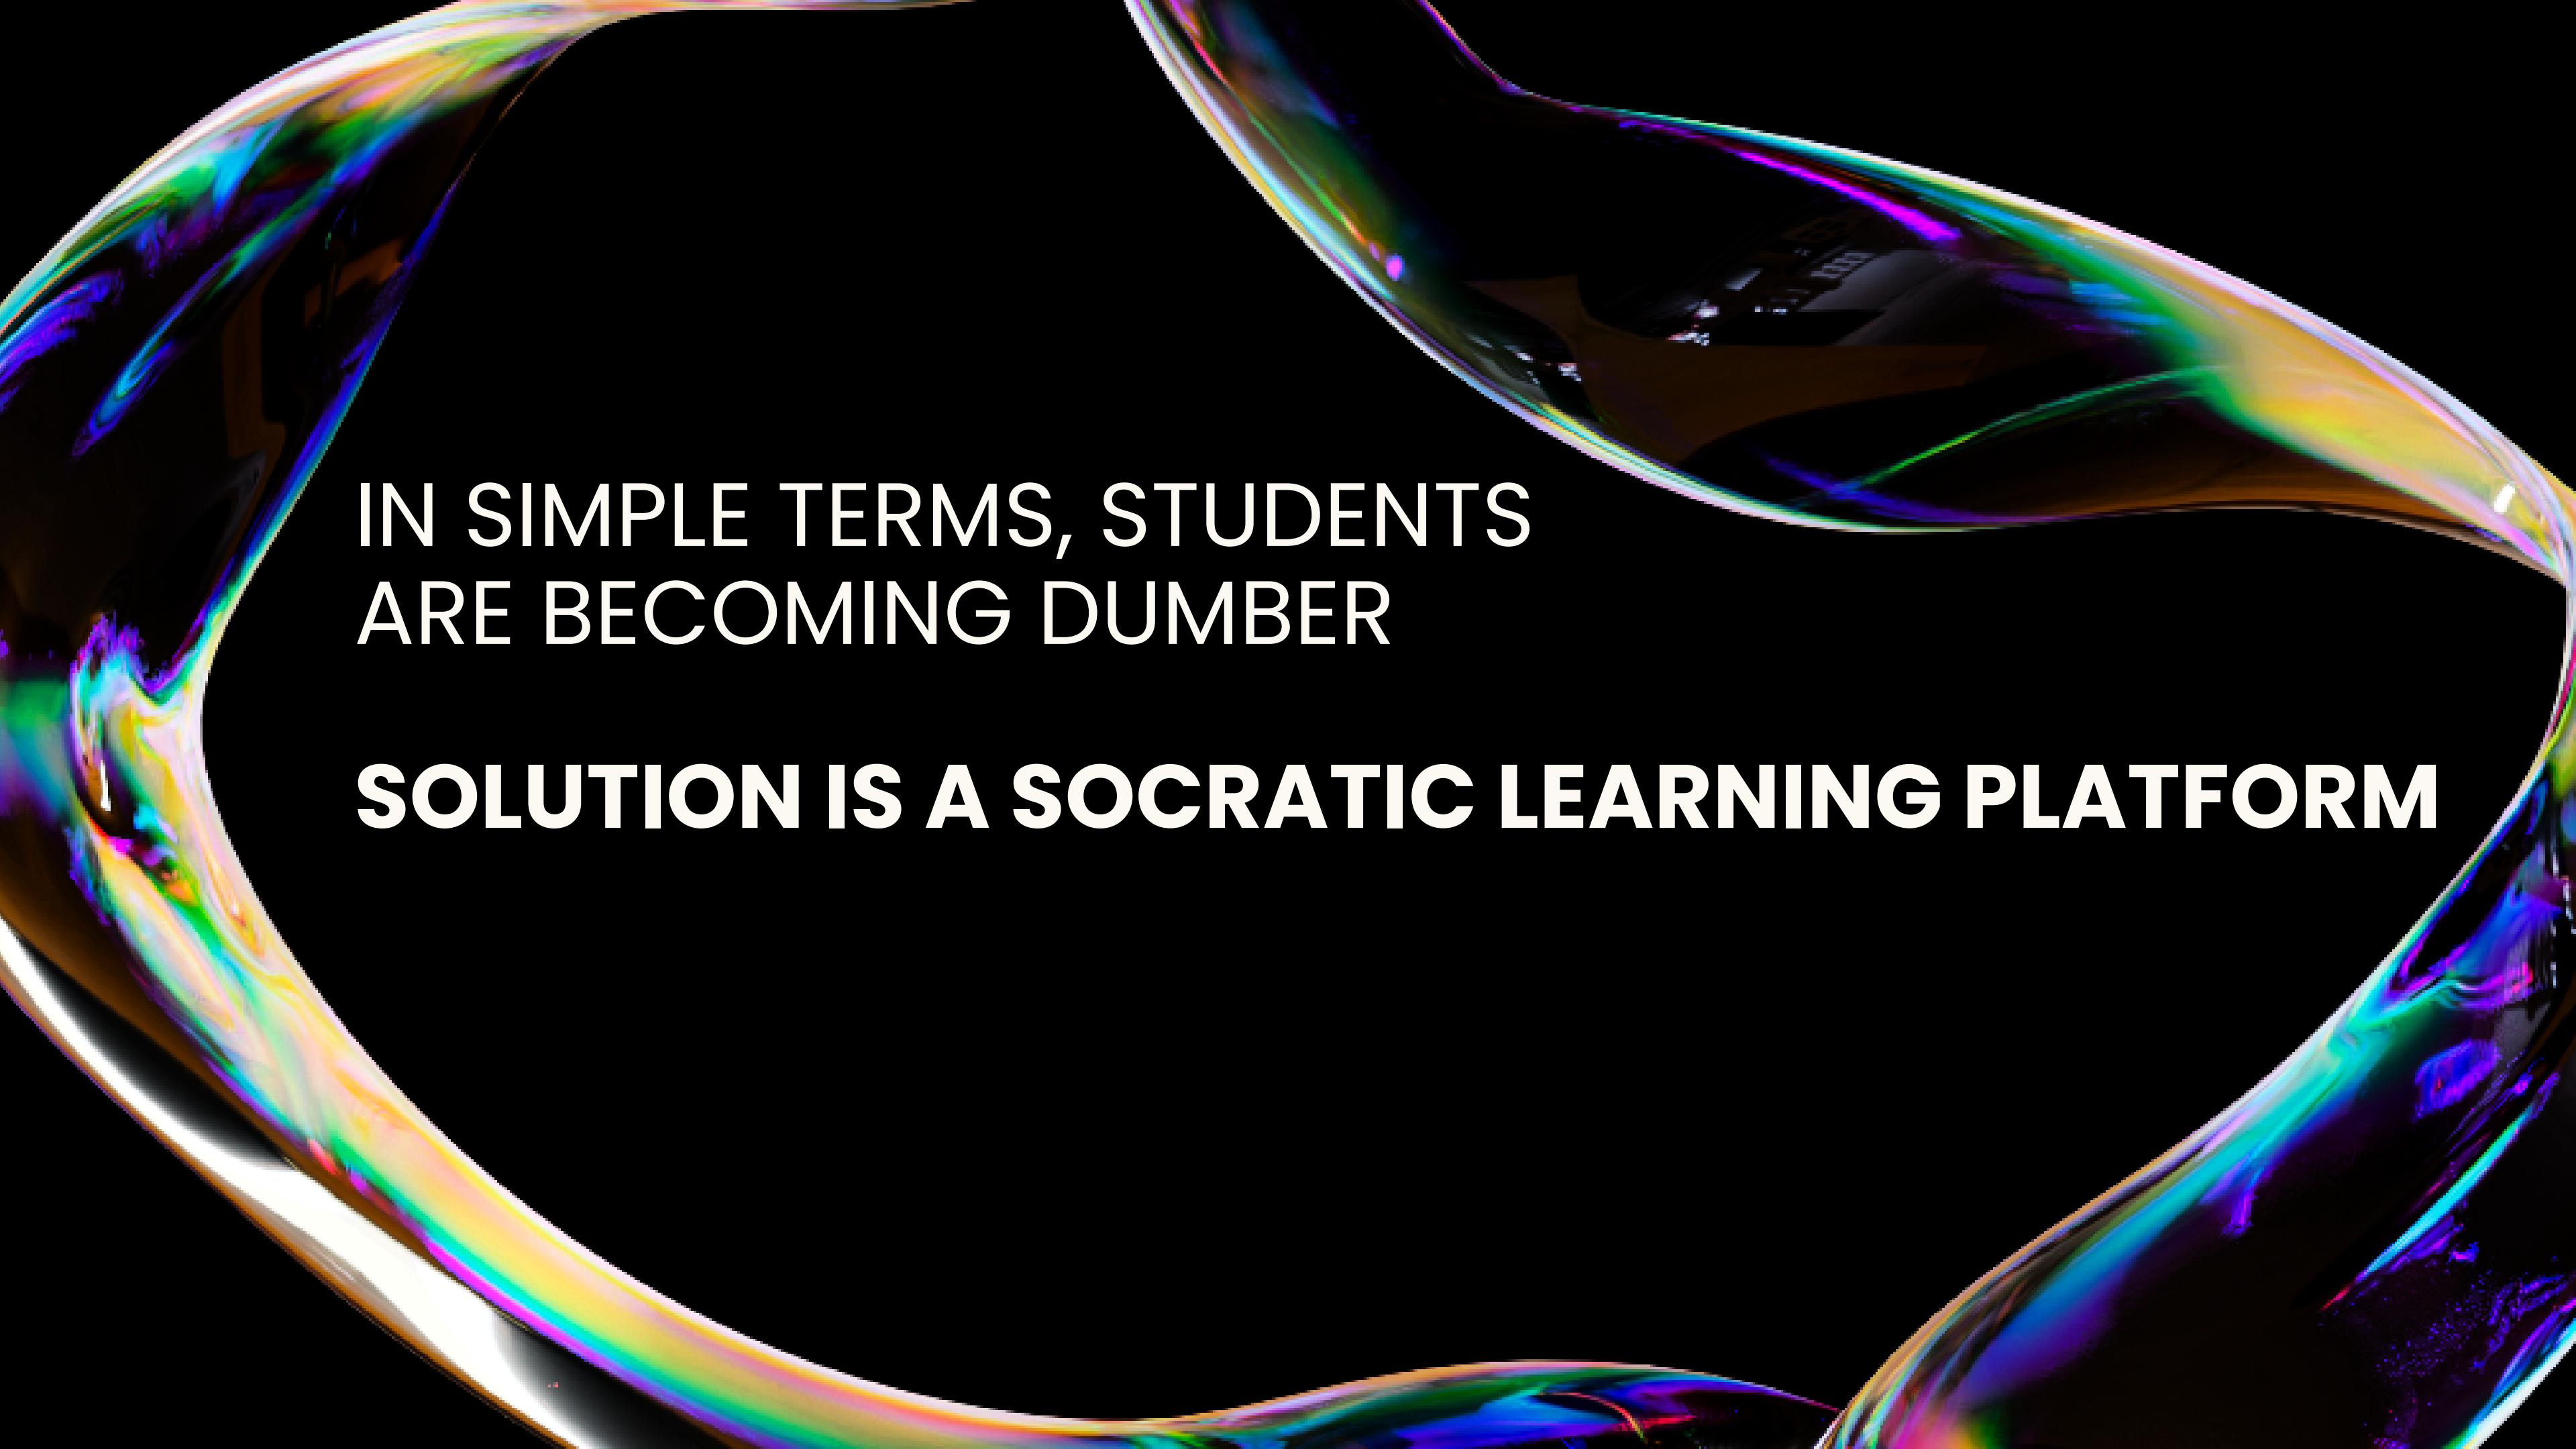

- 64% of students admit they rely on AI tools to complete assignments without understanding the content.
- 1 in 3 learners say they “copy-paste answers” directly from AI without mental effort.
- Critical thinking scores have dropped 20–30% in global assessments in the past decade (OECD trend).
- Companies report that graduates are struggling with logic, reasoning, and problem-solving during job interviews.

WHY THIS PROBLEM MATTERS FOR THE DIGITAL ECONOMY & FUTURE OF WORK

Students increasingly rely on AI without true understanding, creating a critical skills gap as employers report graduates lack the analytical and problem-solving abilities essential for future digital roles.
